INTRODUCTION

Dilli (1997) defines that Public library is often called the "People's University" for its universal character. The public library is an institution for the people, of the people, by the people. It is for all, without the distinction of caste, creed, class, color and sex. Mangla (1985) describes that public library calls a people's university because when properly developed public libraries play an indispensable role as community centres for education information recreation and culture. According to UNESCO's 'Terminology of Documentation', public library is "a library which serves the population of a community or region free of charge or for a nominal fee". Chopra R N defines "the public library refers to a library which is approved wholly or partly from public funds and the use of which is not restricted to any class of persons in the community and freely available to all. A public library is considered as an essential part of society as it plays a vital role in the diffusion of ideas ,the creative use of leisure time preservation of national heritage, social, cultural and educational development of the community. Public libraries have responded to the challenge of electronic revolution and taken the opportunity to develop services in new and exciting ways. Public libraries have an exciting opportunity to help to bring everyone into this global conversation and to bridge what is often called 'the digital divide'.

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

Jonathan Shrem(2012) wrote this paper is designed to provide insight into the role public libraries plays in the successful development of community members from early childhood learners to lifelong learners, and to describe how they support such learners. Public libraries serve the need so fall students, especially as a valuable resource of support along their school pathways. One goal of public libraries is to raise achievement rates for all students. This is seen through programs that develop information and digital literacy skills that offer summer learning opportunities which provide critical support services and programs for underrepresented populations. . The present study discuss the "Performance Of Student User's Attitude of Public Library Sources and Services: A Special Reference to Periyakulam Branch Library at Theni District, Tamil Nadu".

SUGGESTIONS OF THE STUDY

- Finance is the major hurdle of the development of public libraries in the state, therefore the state government and local bodies should ensure proper financial support for the public library.
- It is an essential need to make the rural people educated for understanding the importance of information in their lives.
- The public library authority should give more emphasis for the acquisition of non-book materials like tapes, audio, video and films to help illiterates in the rural areas.
- The library authorizes should make basic provisions like furniture, drinking water, supply of periodicals, newspapers, so that, people from various sections will use the library.
- If mobile library service implement by the department of public library it reaches the services in rural areas.
- Digitalization of library is must to attract more users.
- The location of library building should be in an access point.
- Keen interest person should be appointed by the state government to mobilize library services in rural areas.
- Career guidance programme should be done, so that rural persons can get employment.
- Public library department should purchase good reading books and containing knowledge and information according to the needs of the rural persons.

CONCLUSION

The public libraries promote the use of the students as education agencies for the individual; promote the creation of specialized resources, promote the use of public libraries as information centers, promote the use of public libraries as referral points to specialized source of information.High quality and relevance to local needs and conditions are fundamental material must reflect current trends and the evolution of society, as well as the memory of human endeavor and imagination. The public libraries should be established in the "centre of the city and Knowledge Bank". All categories of people must get opportunity to utilize the library. New technology including color photocopier, scanner, self-checkout, e-readers installations must be included. Across the library board, statistics indicate increased use of the library despite a decrease in the local population.
